SEIKO Spring Drive G.M.T. Luxury timepieces for luxury travel

At Baselworld 2006, the SEIKO Spring Drive collection was expanded to include the first GMT design. For 2007, two additional G.M.T. models are added. The new additions share the circular design concept of all Spring Drive models and are executed with crocodile straps.

The Spring Drive G.M.T. watch is perfect for the international traveller. The G.M.T. hand can be set without disturbing the one-second-a-day precision of the Spring Drive movement, and, like all the hands, it moves in perfect glide motion, reflecting the true natural flow of time.

The power reserve indicator is recessed within the dial

The power reserve dial is set deep within the dial, allowing all four time-of-day hands to glide across the full width of the dial, and the arrow-tip G.M.T. hand is in blue steel for ease of use and maximum legibility.

Two dial variations are offered, slate grey and champagne, and each case has a sapphire glass back through which the remarkable one-way circular motion of Spring Drive is clearly visible.
